

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method of automatic router configuration is disclosed when a cable of the router in operation is replaced or a protocol configuration is changed, a PLD automatically senses the change and initializes parts of the system to normalize communication environments without turning off the power. A TVS circuit is provided to absorb and prevent an electrical shock so that cable replacement is made possible in the power-on state.